Driving The Next Startup Wave

IEEE Rising Stars & The Coming Data Apocalypse

The IEEE Rising Stars Conference took place January 6-8 in Las Vegas, USA

Data apocalypse may sound a little dramatic, but without a proper method of processing the insane amounts of data being exchanged every day, we very well may find ourselves in a dangerous situation sooner than we think. William

Hurley, aka "whurley," recently spoke at January's IEEE Rising Stars Conference about this problem, and more importantly, how engineers can fix it.

Startup Spotlight:

Ampaire

Commercial air travel is responsible for an enormous carbon footprint. That's why California-based startup and IEEE N3XT® Star Ampaire has worked to create zero-emissions aircrafts. The models created by this company are electric, quiet, and will even offer more affordable commercial flights in the future. We caught up with CEO and founder Kevin Noertker at the 2017 Hello Tomorrow Global Summit to discuss his vision for the future of air travel.
